

"Back in Prison—Why?" by DONALD LOWRIE

DYING CONVICT TELLS AMAZING STORY

Back in prison after nearly fourteen years of freedom, Donald Lowrie wonders "Why?" and he shares as he tells the tale, top, top of his head, as he shares the tale, top, top of his head, as he shares the tale, top, top of his head.

By DONALD LOWRIE, CHAPTER IV.

ARIZONA STATE PENITENTIARY, Florence, Ariz., April 24.—My intimacy with Estelle soon became embarrassing. I learned that she was quite well known as public property to the inmates of the Oakland tenebrous district, and she was becoming more and more insistent that I should take her out.

"You act as if you were ashamed of me," she pouted one evening after she had suggested our going to the Orpheum Theatre, and I had quickly made a lame excuse. "You don't think anything of spending hours with me here, but the minute I ask you to take me out, you have an alibi. George and Edgar don't that way."

"WHY DIDN'T YOU SAY IT? YOU COWARD!"

I made the mistake of trying to explain to her.

"Well, you see, Estelle," I said, "you see I can't afford to be seen in public with a—that is, I have a lot of stake here, and I have a lot of stake here, and I have a lot of stake here."

She was up from the couch like a tiger, confronting me with heaving bosom and twitching hands. There was never anything half way about Estelle. Her intensity and passion in everything was perhaps her chief lure.

"You can't afford to be seen in public with—what?" she demanded. "Why did you stop? Why didn't you say it? You . . ."

"And why didn't you say it—why did you stop?" I stammered, begging for mercy. "I can't help it because everybody thinks I'm better than I am—it's my writing that's done it. I'll give anything to be free to take you anywhere, but . . ."

"But you're too good," she interrupted, insisting upon making my defection from full duty to her a personal choice on my part. "And what are you?"

An ex-convict with the swiftest head trying to set yourself up as a little tin god. That's me. I'm used to prison. I wouldn't go out with you now if I was in prison for life and you were the only chance I had, you . . ."

For a moment I was tempted to tip-toe for my hat and out of the room, but even in my anger her forthright sweetness was magnetic. I stood trembling for a moment, then continued on Page 15, Column 1.

TELLS HOW FATHER LASHED MOTHER

Dorothy Gleason, a student at Mount Holyoke, testified in a New Jersey court that her father gave vent to a suddenly developed trait of cruelty by whipping her mother with a wet bath towel.

WHIPPED WIFE WITH WET TOWEL

Whipping his wife with a wet towel was one of her father's favorite amusements, Miss Dorothy Gleason of Mount Holyoke College testified in a probate court at Newark, N. J.

About a year ago, she said, his personality changed completely, and he became "testy, cruel and profane."

Miss Gleason and her mother are trying to have the husband and father, Albert J. Gleason, head of a business college and prominent in sporting circles, declared insane. Not long ago the trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Gleason reached a climax and he hurled her from their home at East Orange, N. J.

"If she hadn't left when he told her to, he would have kicked her out," she said, the daughter testified. When she took the side of her mother, she continued, Gleason barred her from home.

Dr. Clifford Runyon, the family physician, said that Gleason had a mental ailment. Another doctor described the man's condition as "chronic organic progressive brain trouble, accompanied by dementia and illusions of grandeur."

Gleason's defense was that he was perfectly sane and that his wife and their daughter wanted him put away so they could get his money.

U. S. LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES WILL CONFER

Washington, April 24.—A conference of leaders in all the government's law enforcement branches is scheduled with General Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of coast guard, prohibition and customs.

While officials refuse to reveal the nature of the conference, it is understood that methods of enforcing the Federal laws, particularly the smuggling laws, will be considered.

It is hoped by officials that some means can be devised by which the law enforcement agencies of the various departments can coordinate their work, and obtain more results with less duplication of effort.

PUBLISHERS SELECT THEIR NEW OFFICERS

New York, April 24.—S. E. Thomson of Chicago was re-elected president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association today.

Other officers also were selected as follows: Vice-president, John Stewart Brown, Richmond, Va.; News-Editor, George M. Rogers, Cleveland, Ohio; Treasurer, Howard Davis, New York; Herald Tribune, directors, Hiram T. Brown, Indianapolis; News, R. J. Burd, Vancouver, British Columbia; and E. H. Butler, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOREST FIRE MENACES R. I. TOWN

Providence, R. I., April 24.—The town of East Mendon was menaced by a forest fire which was raging today in a 20-acre plot of timberland between Holliston, East Blackstone and Mendon. The flames burst along a line of 100 feet.

Local fire apparatus, aided by volunteers, fought the flames all night, and officials in charge of the fire fighters expressed the hope that the flames might spread to its source before daylight.

Difficulties of the firefighters were increased by the unusually dry condition of the woods and brush.

Cops Beat Ebert as He Defies Royalists

Berlin, April 24 (U.N.S.)—Fritz Ebert, Jr., son of the late first president of the German Republic, was today nursing many cuts and bruises inflicted by a policeman armed with a night stick.

Ebert was arrested last night following a political rally. Ebert was coming along the street when he heard hidden band supporters shout.

"Down with Marx! Hail Hindenburg!"

Ebert shouted: "Long live the Republic!" Fighting between cops and Ebert tried to disperse the crowd.

QUAKE CAUSES TERROR IN SCORE OF BAY STATE TOWNS

Fairhaven a window in the home of Mrs. N. D. Medeiros, who lives on Wing Town road, Arushet, reported that her house rocked back and forth and furniture on eastern radii were all thrown out of position, while dishes were shaken to the floor and smashed.

To the east of Mrs. William B. Ellis, at Fairhaven, garden all smashed out last night in preparation for wedding, was found the morning to be covered with a network of small fissures.

In the vicinity of Middleboro the shocks were most pronounced in the sections about Lake Assawampsett, Peckaba Pond, the Marion road, Robes's Corner and North Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Turner, asleep in a glass porch at their estate on a high hill, overlooking Peckaba Pond, were awakened by the shock which they lasted half a minute.

Mrs. George L. Tinkham, in charge of the telephone exchange at North Rochester, said she was awakened about 2 a. m. by a loud rumbling.

"My husband has been sick and I was attending to him, as well as looking after the exchange," said Mrs. Tinkham.

"Every window in the house rattled and several small articles on the dresser were thrown to the floor. I realized it was another earthquake, and rushed to the switch board. In a few minutes several persons called in wanting to know whether it was an explosion or an earthquake."

PURELY A LOCAL SHOCK.

Professor Mathers said the record on the Harvard seismograph was so faint it was difficult to tell where the disturbance occurred, although there were indications that it was local. He said the Harvard instrument probably was the only one in the country to record the shock. Scientists had expected a disturbance in the vicinity of New Bedford, he said, and another may be along in three or four months, but will be very slight.

It is caused by slipping of the coast where it descends into deep water, according to Professor Mathers, and corresponds to a landslide. He added that probably in the last 200 years Massachusetts has had an average of one disturbance every ten years.

In Boston little of the earthquake disturbance was known until telephone messages began pouring in

Earthquake Hurls Police Chief Out of His Bed

CHIEF OF POLICE ELWELL SMITH of Wareham told of his experience in this morning's earthquake.

"I thought I was dreaming when I awakened shortly after 2 o'clock and found myself hurled out of bed. Heavy rumblings accompanied the shaking of the house."

"At first I thought some heavy automobile truck must have left the road and hit our house."

The chief immediately dressed and hurried to the Wareham police station, where he went on duty for any emergency.

Paul Billiers of Chase road, East Freetown, declared his bed was moved fully a foot as a result of the quake. "It shook the whole house," he said, "and was louder than any thunder storm I have ever heard."

from towns along the Buzzards Bay shore.

As the day wore on stories from all portions of the section visited by the quake poured into Boston, telling of the fright of the citizens who were awakened by the shaking of their homes.

The Tropical Radio Company of Boston stated that no reports of any disturbance of sea had been received.

THROWN FROM HIS BED.

At Wareham Chief of Police Elwell Smith declared: "I thought I was dreaming when I was awakened so quickly shortly after 2 o'clock and found myself out of bed."

Chief Smith said that heavy rumblings accompanied the shaking that threw him out of his bed. "It was one of those rumbling sounds and at first I thought that some heavy automobile truck must have left the road and hit our house."

The chief lives at No. 495 Main street. He immediately dressed and hurried to the Wareham police station, where he went on duty for any emergency.

"Several phone calls were received by me," said Chief Smith, "involving as to what all the noise was about. The rumblings shook my house. It seemed for several seconds and I am sure that it moved the bed. I was sleeping in."

Chief Smith then went out on the street after remaining at the police station to be of assistance to Wareham folks who might have suffered any injury. He said no injuries were reported nor any damages.

ROSE W. WELZING.

At Middleboro, Alton Rogers of No. 13 Lovell street thought someone was pulling his bed out of his room, when he was awakened from his sleep by the rumbling. He immediately jumped out of bed, and from the rattling of the windows in his bedroom learned that it was a quake.

At New Bedford the sergeant on duty at police headquarters reported that he heard rumblings about 2 a. m. which he thought at first was a large caravan of trucks passing the station. He rushed outside of headquarters and looked up and down the street, but could find no vehicles. The rumblings continued and he was then convinced that an earthquake was felt.

He had hardly arrived inside of the police station when he was flooded with phone calls, inasmuch as New Bedford and parts of Fairhaven reported that a quake had been felt and many had been aroused from their sleep.

At Mattamoras the night telephone operator reported that he was on duty all night and that he was suddenly aroused by rumbling. "At first I thought it was thundering, and I went to my window and looked out and found that the skies were clear and the rumblings still continued. I called the phone exchange at North Rochester and reported what I had heard and the operator told me that it was heard in North Rochester, and I realized that it was a quake. It was much louder than thunder, though at first I thought I figured it was thunder."

Paul Billiers, who resides also on Chase road, East Freetown, declared that his bed was moved full a foot as a result of the quake. It shook the whole house," he said, "and was louder than any thunder storm I have ever heard. The rattling of windows also was conspicuous during the quake."

which hangs in the Louvre, bore the caption, "If this be treason, make the most of it."

In the frontpiece showing Washington crossing the Delaware the "Father of His Country" wears a stove pipe hat and carries a hatchet in his hand. He is standing up in the boat with eight fellow patriots bound for the shore on which is a sign reading "Welcome to Trenton!"

One of the patriots is shown appearing a shark, another scooping up from the water what might be a bottle or a fish.

PLACED AS COVER.

One of the features taken exception to by the Boston and Cambridge police was the fact that Washington was partly draped with an American flag, the folds of which were shown about him by the wind.

At the time of the suppression and seizure of the issue, the affair was treated as more or less of a joke and the Harvard University authorities gave no official recognition to the police action.

It could not be learned today whether or not the action of the Federal authorities will be followed by disciplinary action at Harvard.

So the happy climax will come in the Second Church in Boston on Monday, and with the installation of the stenographer as mistress of his handsome Newborn home.

Spurred did the rest, he concluded. He went back in spirit to the Rome and Juliet night fifty years ago and this time he did have the price of a license.

Two officers testified that they had been charged $4.00 for a ticket, for which the legitimate price should have been $4.25.

Juliet incident the banker's clerk and the stenographer stopped going out together, and that was all, until this morning.

"Saw her on the street in the business district one day," the banker explained.

Spurred did the rest, he concluded. He went back in spirit to the Rome and Juliet night fifty years ago and this time he did have the price of a license.

REMBRANDTS SOLD IN U. S. VALUED AT $2,000,000
New York, April 24.—Sales of paintings by Rembrandt to American collectors in recent years involving amounts totaling nearly $2,000,000 were recorded by the course of the Rembrandt exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.
Famous Phila. Youngspot is being Joseph K. Widener of Philadelphia for the return of two Rembrandt portraits which he transferred for 100,000 pounds, contending that the transaction was really a chartered purchase giving him the right to repurchase the pictures for the amount paid plus interest.
Mr. Widener claims he bought the pictures outright.

June Wedding to Unite Hub and Philadelphia Families

Miss Margaret Newlin of Whitford Will Be Bride of Frederick Ames Royce of Dedham

Betty Alden

A JUNE WEDDING WITH THE FLAVOR of both Boston and Philadelphia smartness and carrying a considerable interest heretofore is the ceremonial, set for June 20 in Pennsylvania, which will unite Frederick Ames Royce of Dedham to Miss Margaret Newlin of Whitford, an aristocratic suburb not far from Philadelphia.

THE BRIDEGROOM-ELECT is the son in the Frederick Vags Royce family, their estate out Dedham was, in common with, known as "Signs Knot." The family circle includes three attractive daughters, Mrs. Robert Cushing Hamilton Catherine Royce of Dover, Mrs. Donald M. Baker, Jr. Mary Royce of Weston, and Miss Harriet Royce.

MISS HARRIET came out with the bride of some three Wines ago and takes lively part in all the festive set. In her, and she shines as well as a spirited polo pony as a member of the Dedham Country and Polo Club's feminine team.

HER ENGAGEMENT TO Sidney H. Hooper, a Yale, 21 year, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hooper of Bay State Road, was a pleasant announcement following soon after her presentation Winter. The romance, however, was not to culminate in wedding bells, so I hear.

MISS NEWLIN, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Newlin of Indian Run Farm, Whitford, Pa., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hobbs 12th Newlin of Brookline, sister of Miss Newlin, is selected to be the matron of honor.

Mrs. Morgan Butler is the well-known Bernice Fisher Butler of the delightful voice and charming person. She is to be "Gretel" at the Boston Opera House tomorrow afternoon when the New England Conservatory stages "Hansel and Gretel" with a notable cast.

formed this evening for the first time, and a matinee tomorrow. Bates Hall is the place. Girls of the best set and girls yet to be buds are animating the opera.

FOR "THE PIRATES" Miss Elizabeth Lockwood and Miss Juliet Greene have the tickets and program. Miss Elizabeth Fenno and Miss Sally Porter the rebellious and clever "Cook" in the lingo menage in the Vincent Club's "Fox," head the other squad.

THINGS TO BE A brilliant display at the beach over which Mrs. Curtis Guild presides at the "Spring Gambol." And one sure to a large money center for the sport cause.

SUCH A MARVELOUS collection of beautiful things will be for sale as quite beggars description in cold type. Mrs. Guild's hosts of friends and they are a very legion have responded gallantly to her calls and a veritable avalanche has descended upon the popular matron.

BEGINNING WITH THOSE of much appeal to the proverbial which is not over here, there are many lovely bead necklaces and small purses at moderate price. The bead things have come from the Soldiers' Ship in Bayonet Street, and every purchaser will be helping not only the hospital but the disabled exercise man.

TRAVELING UPWARD in the scale of prices one finds in this treasure trove a gaudy Mandarin coat, stately cloisonne and crystal vase, antique screens, exquisite embroidery, a Louis XV. style mirror, some rich church vestments from Rome, silver pieces from Holland, mirrors and trunks.

JUST THE PLACE to pick up an odd and "different" thing gift for the "Bride of the Spring," and just the spot, as well, to add a lovely decorative bit to one's own collection of art jewelry or other adornments.

VARIOUS SETS of gleaming buckles for Missy's slippers are there for the buying. Also head bags and belts, lovely bits of jewelry from the hands of foreign and home artisans, and any number of oddments appealing to the discriminating collector.

MRS. ALVAN T. FULLER is the honorary chairman for Mrs. Guild's booth, which by the way is called the "Old Curiosity Shop." Mrs. Fuller is to be on hand Saturday morning from 10:30 to 12:30 to play the sale.

OTHERS OF THE GROUP assisting are Mrs. Homer Conway, Mrs. John T. Bostoney, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge, Mrs. Henry Parson, Jr., Mrs. Lavinia, Mrs. William F. Warkins, Mrs. Endicott Nourse and Mr. H. C. Ross.

THE VOODOO HOOODOO man is entirely routed from the plans for "Lucky Locker, Booth 13" and "Lady Luck" is the presiding genius for this glorified "Grab Bag" which is Mrs. Henry Gray's idea. Mrs. Walter Merriam Pratt's particular contribution to the may-mess of the "Spring Gambol" just before mentioned.

IT'S A CASE of putting down any modest sum, from dime to dollar, and adding in one's own to the list of the "Spring Gambol" is the prize, ranging from things to delight the child's heart, to a lunch

JOHN BARRIETTE, Mrs. Louis de Stelger, Mrs. Frank Wann Mrs. Robt. L. O'Brien, Mrs. Carol Swan, Mrs. Porter Adams, Mrs. Helen Lincoln, Miss Edith Tucker, Miss Margaret Allen and Miss Al Bush are able assistants in "Locker," which promises to be one of the "Gambol's" big success.

THE CORPS also includes Mrs. Charles D. Roberts and Mrs. Katharine Cowin. They'll all be on hand at the "Locker" with cheery smiles welcome all who love a treasure hunt and the ever-alluring "chance." Mr. Leonard and her co-workers hope to add a most substantial note to the grand total the "Gambol" will earn for the Children's Hospital.

THE PRINCESS MARGARET BONCOMPAGNE the former Margaret Draper of Boston and Washington also is a passenger bound for foreign shores and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge is outward bound.

GOLDWYN AND BRIDE SPEEDING WESTWARD

New York, April 24. — Sammie Goldwyn and his bride, who used to be Miss Frances Howard McLaughlin, and who has acted in motion pictures her husband produces, are speeding towards Los Angeles today after a hurried marriage in the office of City Judge Leo Sullivan in Jersey City, and a wedding luncheon at the Ritz Carlton. The bride is twenty-one, the bridegroom "over forty," and one of the richest men in the motion picture business. Miss Constance McLaughlin was bridesmaid and Edgar Selwyn best man at the wedding.

THIS IS THE RIGHT DOUBLE BREASTED IT'S MADE BY HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

You'll find it worn by the men in London and New York who set the style pace for the world. Wider shoulders, wider lapels, snugness at the hips; full trousers that taper a trifle to the shoe. It's especially smart in the new Gothic browns and Antwerp blues. The Hart-Schaffner & Marx label means the latest style with fine all-wool quality; you'll find it sewed in the coat.

'ABIE'S IRISH ROSE' FAILS IN REAL LIFE

Mother Kidnaps Abie's Girl After Marriage to Jewish Boy

Jersey City, N. J., April 24.—Love found a way, Simon Lewald, an enterprising and go-getting young Jewish beau, took in marriage Miss Agnes Carson, a pretty young Irish girl who knows her own mind.

The Lewalds rather frowned on the idea of Simon marrying a Gentile.

The Carsons negatively violently the idea of Agnes wedding a Jew. It worked out beautifully in "Abie's Irish Rose," but that's only a play and in plays anything might happen.

The romance of Simon's Irish Agnes was something else again. The youngsters fell for each other, and in each other's eyes could see that racial prejudices were gone—barriers to true love.

Simon is a bit of a spender, and he convinced Agnes.

"Now," said Agnes, after the knot was tied, "Let's go home and tell mother."

"Why ruin the honeymoon?" argued Simon. "Let's go to my home. I got some influence there."

So the bride and groom journeyed to the Highlands of Simon, and, in a manner, was welcomed.

Simon got his sister to telephone to Mrs. Carson.

She brought back dire news. "Mrs. Carson got an awful shock when I told her," the sister reported. "Ooooh, the things she said. I can't repeat them."

A short time after the phone conversation, somebody called up from the Carson house.

Mrs. Carson had undergone a heart shock.

The couple was urged to come right over, before it was too late. Tragically, they went.

When Simon and Agnes reached the house they were set upon Mrs. Carson, whose heart seemed to have improved mightily. She was assisted by her two stalwart sons.

They drew Agnes forcibly inside, and Simon made a stately attempt to follow her. Perhaps his eloquence, he thought, might effect a reconciliation.

But these stalwart sons wouldn't listen.

"Eloquence is no good if it can't get started," Simon went out rather more violently than he entered.

Thus it is that Judge Leo Sullivan issued a warrant charging a mother with the kidnapping of her own adult daughter, and issued similar warrants for the two stalwart sons.

The Carsons and the Lewalds will meet in court, and that, perhaps, will be another story.

MONEY PAID ON HEARSE IS STOLEN

Chicopee Falls Undertaker Held for Robbing Company's Safe

New Bedford, April 24.—The advent of Albert Rypke into the undertaking business in Chicopee Falls has been short lived.

Albert, who started off on the right foot, so to speak, in his new business venture, is in district court today answering to charges growing out of his alleged theft of $1,025, which he is alleged to have paid to a New Bedford firm for a hearse and then to have stolen.

The carriage works, paid the money for the hearse and, after being given the vehicle, robbed the safe of the money he had just paid. The police, when notified, went on the trail of the hearse, locating it near Battery Park. Lieutenant Raymond Case and Detective Sergeant George A. Wilson searched Rypke and his car, but found no trace of the money.

GUARDIAN SOUGHT FOR RECLUSE SCIENTIST

Two petitions seeking permanent guardianship of Frank A. Fawcett, a recluse and recluse, who created a sensation when he defied the police for nine months to evict him from his home, No. 248 Beacon street, Somerville, were heard in Middlesex Probate Court.

In addition to an estate valued at $6,000, Fawcett has an annual income of about $200. Ralph W. Stearns, temporary guardian, presented his petition for permanent guardianship, added by Mrs. Jeannette M. Manning, who fed Fawcett during the time he was in his home.

DON DUFFIE TO LEAD IN BATTLE OF MUSIC

Many Boston people will journey from the Theatre, tonight to the West End ballroom as a tribute to Don Duffie, twenty-three-year-old West End orchestra leader, who will conduct his Parkway Society Orchestra in a battle of music with the regular Roseland ballroom band. Duffie, who is one of the youngest leaders in Greater Boston and his band have become one of the most popular dance orchestras in the vicinity because of their success as radio broadcasters. Charles "Sandy" Chapman, well-known in Boston years ago as one of the best ballad singers of his time, now manager of the Roseland ballroom, completed the arrangements.

ENVOY BRINGS MESSAGE TO HUB FROM DE VALERA

Sean T. O'Connell, envoy of the Irish Republic, has notified the general committee in charge of the Fenian Hall Commemoration meeting on next Sunday evening that he will bring messages of inheritance from Eamon De Valera and Margaret Pearse, mother of Padric Pearse, first President of the Republic, and William Pearse, both executed after the Easter rising in Dublin, 1916. After the Sunday meeting the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, under whose auspices the meeting is being held, plans a campaign for membership and also a new drive in favor of the purchase of goods made in the U. S. A.

CARDINAL DUE TO ARRIVE IN HUB TODAY

Pope See, may take place this year. Several hundred Greater Boston and New England Catholics have signed their desire to visit Pope Pius during the Holy Year and if the numbers continue to grow, Cardinal O'Connell will lead a second pilgrimage, he said.

The Lapland, from Naples to New York, with stops at Monaco and Gibraltar, brought back to Yankee land, in addition to Cardinal O'Connell and other passengers, Walter B. Guretti of Lowell, upon whom Pope Pius has conferred the Order of the Knighthood of St. Gregory.

HAPPY AT RETURN.

"I cannot express my happiness at being back home again to see my own people and resume my work in familiar scenes," said Cardinal O'Connell as the huge liner swung at quarantine only a few hours removed from Boston. "Next to that happiness I am moved again at the overwhelming success of the Boston pilgrimage."

"The pilgrimage was a decidedly successful pilgrimage—really a very wonderful achievement—and we were delighted to learn that it was the first large pilgrimage to reach Rome during the Holy Year. We were received with open arms everywhere, by everybody, and the Holy Father and his court remarked upon the perfect discipline and order with which the tremendous undertaking was carried out."

PRaises Boston.

"Upon our arrival, the Holy Father made a very interesting address. He began by saying that Boston had taken the lead in so many things that it was not surprising to him that we should be the first in a pilgrimage to the Holy Land for the year."

"Then he went on to speak of the wonderful progress America has made—the great power for good she possesses at the present time—and said that he felt that great power is to be used for the purification of the entire universe."

"The Holy Father, you know, is devoted to this idea of world peace. Cardinal O'Connell brought home with him a number of letters from the doorway of St. Peter's of Vatile and of the doorway of St. Mary Major—vicar of the Holy City that will become part of several ecclesiastical buildings contemplated in Greater Boston."

FINE WELCOME.

The cardinal expressed all praise for the open-handed manner in which the Greater Boston and New England pilgrims were received in Italy by the civil and military authorities. A general of the Italian army was detailed to accompany the cardinal from Naples to Rome. Italy, the cardinal declared, never was in a more peaceful or progressive state and the country is emerging from the shadows of the war faster than any other European nation. "From close observation," he said, "I must think the country was even more peaceful and in such good order as it is at the present time."

EDITH GOULD'S OWN STORY of THE LIFE of a RICH GIRL

Gould Heiress Tells the Intimate Details of Life of Rich

By Edith Gould Wainwright

Daughter of George J. Gould and granddaughter of Jay Gould

(CHAPTER XXV)

Of all outdoor exercises I preferred horseback riding. There were two persons with whom I rode a good deal and whose company had meant so much to me. One was my cousin, Mr. H. L. Hurler, and the other was Miss L. B. Carter, a teacher.

Mr. Hurler, of whom I have already written, was a gentle man of the old school. He was already seventy years old when I was a little girl, but he sat in the saddle like a young man. He had high ideals of honor and integrity and it was to him that I brought my childish worries and sorrows. Invariably I followed his advice and found it good.

I met Miss Carters when she taught at Miss Walker's school at Lakewood. Miss Walker, who ran a splendid country boarding school, had leased the house which my mother had built for her cousin, Mrs. Lillian Hamilton, and also the house opposite Georgian Court, in which my sister Marjorie was to live later.

Miss Carters, who had been a missionary in the West, was a most interesting woman. When I learned that she was fond of riding I asked her to come many times and she would keep me amused with stories of the West. She died a few years ago, but I am certain her religious influence lives in many girls whom she taught and knew.

I did not wish to dwell upon the sorrow suffered by my parents when two of my brothers eloped. Kingston married Suzanne Lauch, formerly an Italian governess, and three days later George followed his elder brother's example and married Laura Carter, a dancing teacher. Mamma and Papa, however, forgave George and Laura several years before King lost was restored to their good graces. Mamma felt that George was so young when he ran away that it was excusable. Kingston and his wife, however, were between thirty and forty at the time they married.

'Lone Wolf' Joshes Alienist, Who Ruled Him Sane

James E. Walters, the "Lone Wolf" now in State Prison, followed a conviction on charges of kidnapping and murder in his last moments in which he was visited by Dr. Starnes, one of the alienists who testified at trial and who had pronounced him a psychopathic personality.

Dr. Starnes is said to have inquired of Mr. Walters how he was getting on. Are you hearing me, he asked over here.

Non descript, replied the "Lone Wolf" as he waved his hand in part of the physician, "You are a good stand each other pretty well. I didn't get any thing over on you."

3 DIE IN FRENCH SICK CHILDREN WAITING FOR 'GAMBOL'

Paris, April 24 (AP)—In what police believe to have been a political ambush, three Communists died today in a meeting of the National Popular Front League in Paris. The Communists, who were waiting for a "gambol" (a game of chance), were killed and two others wounded when a bomb exploded in the room.

Two men, Joseph Baccari and Paul Chert, accused by the police of Communism, were arrested and heathen later announced that the three dead were members of that party. The police are investigating the cause of the explosion.

The men carrying out the attack, it is believed, came from the street and entered the room where the meeting was taking place. The meeting was held in a school building on a quiet street.

DECATHLON AT PENN CARNIVAL STUBBORNLY CONTESTED

DEAD HEAT IN 100 METRES

A Franklin Field, Phila., Apr. 24 (AP).—Excellent weather and a fast track proved the more than 2,000 athletes, including representatives of Cuba, Canada and Great Britain, participating today and tomorrow in the first annual Penn carnival.

The 100-meter race was a dead heat between Moe and Joe, who both finished in 18.667 seconds. Moe had a little tough luck yesterday. He slapped his swag on Pete The Scribe, but Pete was a trifle late getting in and finished second. However, this is another day, and he hopes with the help of Butch Joyce's rooting to make up for the loss. B. R. now $18.667.20.
